

2019 Scholarship Recipients

Spencer McDaniel is a graduate of Northwestern High School in Kokomo, Indiana and currently a Sophomore at Indiana University – Bloomington. Spencer developed a passion for ancient history in elementary school and plans to become a professor of the ancient classics. Spencer has been a regular ancient history contributor to Wikipedia under the username Katolophyromai and also maintains his own website—talesoftimesforgotten.com—where he writes articles about the ancient world and tries to make them entertaining for the average reader. He is a member of the History Undergraduate Student Association (HUSA) at IU and was an active member of Northwestern High School's chapter of National Honor Society and German Honor Society. He participated in Boy Scouts, 4-H and several other clubs during his high school years. Teachers find Spencer to be goal oriented, self-motivated and hard working. We are pleased to award a Dunham House Educational Foundation $2500 Presidential Scholarship to Spencer for the 2019-20 school year.

Samantha Stapleton, is a graduate of Tipton High School, Indiana and currently attending Ball State University with a major in Architecture and a minor in historic preservation. Samantha has been on the Dean's List for three semesters in a row and five of her projects were selected for presentation to the National Architecture Accrediting Board. This past year she was also a finalist for the Indiana Hardwood Lumber Association design competition. Samantha is a member of the American Institute of Architecture Students (AIAS). One college professor described Samantha as a true "winner" and gave her his highest recommendation. She held several leadership positions in high school and always effectively engaged others to obtain their goals. We are pleased to award Samantha a Dunham House Educational Foundation $2500 Presidential Scholarship for the 2019-2020 school year.
